From Our Pastor...

NOW WHERE ARE WE TO FIND HIM?

“But on the first day of the week, at early dawn, they went to the tomb...” In Luke’s Gospel, the writer simply informs the reader that “they” went to Jesus’ burial tomb. The reader may surmise that the “they” refers to the women who had come with Jesus from Galilee and had seen his body lain in the tomb. These women then prepared spices and ointments for Jesus’ deceased body. But upon return to the tomb, they found the stone rolled away and upon entering the tomb they found no body. What would they have thought? Was there some trickery involved? Had there been vandals? Perplexed and frightened, the women were greeted by two strangers who asked them why they would be seeking “the living among the dead.” Could they have thought that these two strangers might have something to do with Jesus’ disappearance? These strangers called upon the women to recall a time in Galilee when Jesus indicated that he would be crucified but “on the third day rise.” How would have these strangers known that? Were they also followers of Jesus? Everything seemed so mysterious.

How were these women, faithful followers of Jesus, to process such information? They had just recently witnessed the suffering and death of their beloved Jesus. So much was happening so quickly. Maybe they were still in a state of shock and were not capable of thinking clearly. Was fear clouding their understanding? What could these strangers have meant by “the living among the dead?” Surely, they had witnessed Jesus’ last breath. How was any truth to be sorted out from what they had seen and heard?

And then, the writer of Luke’s Gospel simply informs the reader that “they remembered his words.” Remembered what words? What had Jesus said to them? Did they remember a prediction of Jesus’ death and resurrection? Did this remembrance fill them with belief and hope? Whatever they had been feeling, again the writer of Luke’s Gospel shares, these women returned to tell others, including the disciples, what they had seen and heard. How did these women share such news? Were they excited or fearful, jubilant or unsure? Whatever the case, their audience heard their story as an “idle tale” and did not believe them, at least, for a certain period of time.

But two millennia later, stories are still being told that Jesus’ body is not to be found in a tomb for he has been raised from the dead and he lives! How we are indebted to these women who spoke the truth and persisted even in the midst of others’ doubts and disbelief. Not only do we bear witness to Jesus’ resurrection, for we also live in the continuity of the hope displayed by these women, some who are identified as Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Joanna in Luke’s Gospel. Jesus lives! And we believe! Easter faith lives on!

As Easter people, we carry on the promise of God the Father. Because Jesus lives, we live in the hope of resurrection and the restoration of all things. But our Easter faith also bears witness to Jesus’ living presence in our world today. Our faith directs us to resurrection hope as well as to recognize Jesus’ living presence in our daily living. If we are to tell others that Jesus is not just a memory brought to us from the distant past but a living presence for us today, how will we respond to others’ inquiries of where this Jesus may be found in our time and place?

If we say that Jesus overcame death upon a cross and now lives, where might we tell others where he may be found? Is Jesus in heaven? Is Jesus present on earth? Is Jesus with believers? Is Jesus to be found in the church? Is Jesus with people in their time of need? Is Jesus in places, holy and righteous? Is Jesus in places, hellish and filled with terror and fear? Is Jesus in our hearts? Is Jesus with doubters and unbelievers? Is Jesus in the faces of our neighbors? Is Jesus in the faces of our enemies? Is Jesus where we want him to be? Is Jesus where God the Father wants him to be?

Are we able, by our faith, to direct others to experience Jesus' presence in their lives regardless of whatever it is they are saying or doing? Are we able to help others see Jesus' presence in our own words and actions? Are we able to reveal Jesus' presence through the plethora of choices we make each and every day?

The impact of Jesus' resurrection bears upon the promise of our own resurrection. But as importantly, Jesus' resurrection impacts the way we are called to live now, in faith and with others. Easter directs us away from an empty tomb back into a busy world filled with Jesus' presence, a presence of forgiveness, mercy, grace and love. For where there is love, Jesus will be seen.
